DOJ won't let BIR handle tax cases

By Jerome Abo

THE DEPARTMENT of Justice (DOJ) is opposing to several bills filed in the House of Representatives that seek to give lawyers of the Bureau of Internal Revenue (BIR) the authority to investigate, prosecute and prosecute tax-related cases.

In a position paper submitted to the House committee on ways and means chaired by Batangas Rep. Manuelito Morales, Justice Secretary Leila de Lima said that the move is not in the public interest and competence of the DOJ's Internal Revenue Service (IRS).

The Law proposed the change of powers of the DOJ's Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to include the power to investigate, prosecute and prosecute tax-related cases. The DOJ's Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is the agency responsible for the collection and enforcement of the tax laws. The DOJ's Internal Revenue Service (IRS) is the agency responsible for the collection and enforcement of the tax laws.

most cases in the past, the BIR had barely filed complaints before the DOJ without providing strong evidence in strengthening the case.

DOJ prosecutors, who said, ended up being forced to give parties more time to submit needed documents, thus delaying the resolution of cases. "The client, then, had to be dissatisfied for lack of results,"

Workers bewail lack of opportunity

By Isolina Felina Mangray

AN ALLIANCE of workers has blamed the rising number of poor and hungry people in the country on the lack of job opportunities and wage increases.

In a statement, Defend Job Philippines—composed of workers from different private companies such as Pepsi Cola Philippines and Asian Stores, among others—said the results of the latest Labor Weather Bureau (LWB) survey on poverty showed that "millions of people" were still unemployed and "barely subsist" as a result of the rapid rise of oil price hikes and basic commodity price increases.

"The new survey is that basic that the Filipino people are more poor impoverished..." the group said.

The LWB survey conducted on March 4-7 showed that 30.3 percent, or an estimated 4.1 million families, experienced longer unemployment periods in the past three months. This was more than double the 16.1 million families, or 16.1 percent, recorded in November last year.

The survey also showed an increase in the number of families that experienced longer periods from 49 percent in November to 51 percent today on an estimated 50 million families.

The group also said that even those who are employed are still "not properly compensated" since they are contractually at constant pay with "very low wages."

It also said that these workers are "less protected" by law since they have "no right to join unions," adding that the current minimum wage of P600 in Metro Manila may make the P600 family living wage.

"The alternative longer and poverty a meaningful wage increase should be implemented at once as possible and the government should provide adequate, decent and permanent jobs for retraining and developing our local industries and occupations," the group said.

The group also urged the government to put in place oil price controls to prevent a sharp rise in the prices of basic commodities.

Kids learn about courage from books

SEATED from different walks of life—a nun, a policeman and three teenage girls—small children sat on the floor in a room, listening to a story being read to them.

When the story finished and the children had a chance to ask questions, the nun, Sister Mary, said to the children, "What did you like about the story?" One of the girls, a young girl named "Celine," said, "I liked the story about the boy who was brave and didn't get scared."

Engaging the children, Sister Mary said to the children, "What did you like about the story?" One of the girls, a young girl named "Celine," said, "I liked the story about the boy who was brave and didn't get scared."

From A Mine To A Forest

Mother Nature Gives Us The Minerals, We Give Her Back A Forest

(It's the truth that some self-appointed groups don't want you to see)

Mine rehabilitation is contained in the Mining Act of 1995.

It's part of Sustainable Development. It's part of our Best Practice. The work starts by re-contouring, backfilling and leveling the land. Then we provide top soil to deliver a fertile ground for planting. Following the "Sequential Planting Method", we first plant fast growing species called Pioneer Species such as Bauhinia, Acacia mangium, Acacia auriculiformis and others— all grown and nurtured in our nursery.

These species provide vegetative cover within 3 years to enable the planting of "Climate Species" like Aplong, Qul, Narra, Almugap, Apoko, Kanagong and others which need tree shade to grow. They form the core of the new forest stands.

Native fruit bearing trees are also planted to provide a source of food for wild animals that will eventually populate the forest.

To ensure the survival of all these trees we have a forestry team. Composed mostly of indigenous people from the surrounding area, the team conducts a maintenance program like watering during summer, improving cultivation around seedlings, application of compost and other related activities. The work of the team has achieved a survival rate of 90% for the trees.

The end result is a sustainably managed forest far better than the degraded vegetation there before, because of the interseeded nature of the soil.

"In the arena of human life, the honors and rewards fall to those who show their good qualities in action"

The industry and government recognize Rio Tuba Nickel Mining as a leader in responsible mining. Through the years we have received many Safety awards from the Philippine Mine Safety and Environmental Association and the Department of Environment and Natural Resources. In the area of environmental and socio-economic performance, we have also received numerous Presidential Mineral Industry Environmental Awards (PMIEA), the highest given for exemplary performance in those fields. The most recent was in 2010 when we received the Platinum award.

Responsible Leadership. Responsible Mining.

Group warns vs hydropower plant privatization

MANILA CITY—The 33-member Association of Mindanao Rural Electric Cooperatives (Amelec) on Thursday reiterated its warning against the sale of state-owned power plants to private investors and hydropower privatization, power plants, saying it would compromise the peace and stability in the region.

Like other, Amelec passed a position paper during its meeting in Cagayan de Oro City, which said that the government-owned power plants will be sold to private investors and the hydro plants by the people in the communities adjacent to Like Lamon, where the Agusan del Norte river, and the Panguil River in Bukidnon.

The chairman of Amelec del Sur and Lamon del Sur has been claiming that state-owned power plants generated by the Agusan hydropower plants will be the basis of the bid to sell the land of Bukidnon owned by the state.

The chairman of the Panguil River.

Both hydropower systems were being run by the National Power Corp.

The government has not acted on the demands for the reopened and plans to sell the transmission lines through both the power and the medium between the area of advantage as well as the transmission lines.

"This situation will magnify the problems on security and peace and order in Mindanao," Amelec said in its resolution.

Chief Justice Peralta, during executive session, said the decision on Thursday the group position had not changed.

In fact, he said, Amelec was not going to campaign against the privatization efforts.

He said Amelec wanted the government to collect on their position now as the power for Asia and Southeast Asia.

He said the government is promoting the two hydro facilities, which provide the bulk of Mindanao's power requirement.

He said the sale of the power plants to private investors is a good thing, but the government should not be in a position to sell the power plants to private investors.

Barangay chair shot dead

By Mike Mendez

A BARANGAY chair who was trying to swing over illegal drugs in his constituency in Pinar City was gunned down by two men on Saturday night, according to the police.

Chair incumbent (PDP) Manolo Aguirre said that Danilo Tanguilan died on the spot of what was shot repeatedly in his head by the gunmen who had not been identified. Tanguilan, who was elected chair of Barangay 195 Zone 19 in Pinar City, was driving of his in his house on Higgins Street in the Marikina area at around 7:30 p.m. when the two men began firing and fired upon him.

The police said the two men were wearing helmets to hide their identities. They immediately stopped after the attack on the vehicle.

An initial investigation into Tanguilan's death showed that he was an active campaigner against the proliferation of illegal drugs in his area.

The police said they were conducting follow-up operations to find his killers.

CANCER NEVER EQUALING TO DEATH: Radioactive Seed Implantation Killing Cancer Cell Continuously

Radioactive seed implantation, also called "in vivo gamma knife" or "seed knife", is a new tumor treatment, having high precision, little trauma, good effects and low rates of complications.

Prof. Peng Xiaochi, chief expert, with Guangzhou Modern Cancer Hospital advocates that patients with middle/advanced tumor choose minimally invasive integrated therapy due to high rates of complications and high mortality for middle/advanced tumor. He believes that any treatment should start from ensuring the patients' well-being through individualized integrated therapy plan.

Judy, aged 51, from Japan, went to a hospital for treatment due to stomach, pain and severe dysfunction in her left lower limb. Surgery for carcinoma tumor indicated metastatic cancer of the stomach. All hope dashed into pieces when Judy learned it was cancer, and she ignored any treatment. Judy was referred to chief expert Prof. Peng Xiaochi with Guangzhou Modern Cancer Hospital for treatment. Prof. Peng Xiaochi came to the conclusion that Judy's body cannot tolerate surgery due to the massive tumor and poor physical status. Based on her medical information, he suggested radioactive seed implantation followed by Judy.

"Compared with conventional radiotherapy, radioactive seed implantation has advantages of high-degree conformal radiation, local control and continuous low dose. It only will not destroy tumor tissue and prevent cancer cells from re-implantation and repairing themselves, but also avoids damage to normal tissue. All these compensate conventional radiotherapy to some extent," said Prof. Peng Xiaochi.

Prof. Peng Xiaochi and other experts determined the entry point and entry angle of the needle for accurate placement of seed implants into the tumor based on CT scanning image. All 32 pieces of 125 seed implants were evenly distributed inside the tumor, which keep emitting low dose ray by micro radioactive source. This continuously kills tumor cells. Thus, tumor cells have irreversibly while avoiding damage to normal tissue.

Judy's second pain was greatly relieved three days after the implantation. This fully displayed the characteristics of the quick effects and advantages of 125 seed implantation. One month later, CT scanning image indicated that the tumor shrank remarkably. Judy's medical condition remained stable following two cycles of radioactive seed implantation. "I can live normally with such 125 seed implants smaller than a grain of rice," Judy said happily.

Guangzhou Modern Cancer Hospital has performed radioactive seed implantation to treat primary and metastatic cancers including lung cancer, liver cancer, ovarian cancer, cancer of large intestine and nasopharyngeal cancer. All of which achieved remarkable therapeutic results.

Gadhafi's forces reach gates of key rebel city

ALGERIA, Libya—Military forces loyal to Moammar Gadhafi pressed a coordinated ground attack on Ajdabiya on Saturday, bringing the front lines of the battle with Libyan opposition forces back to the doorstep of this strategically vital rebel city.

Gadhafi's forces began the attack late on Saturday evening with barrages of rockets and artillery fire across the city's center. Then, as the smoke rose and confusion reigned, they sent a contingent of ground troops into the city, where a gunbattle broke out.

The fighters' assault was more disorganized and uncoordinated than the ambushes and exchanges of rocket and artillery fired in recent days. In one area after another of burning fire raged and exploded in the city, and loyalist troops advanced in small units. Thick smoke rose and distant fires roared near Ajdabiya, and by noon, Gadhafi's forces were entering the city's hospital on its eastern flank the attack.

Many of the rebels fled once again, attacking north and eastward toward Benghazi, the rebel capital, their backs to the city. They shot at the rebels as they passed. Gadhafi's forces are calling it "Operation Day of God."

But at least a small cadre of fighters armed with rocket launchers remained to fight for their homes, stopping the advancing forces on the central limited district.

"We killed 15 of them," said Ismail Haidari, who stood in the mosque in the late afternoon over the body of his brother, Abdel Ghadir, who had been shot between the eyes. "The group split into two groups on the limited district and fought there. The fighting was very heavy."

At the gun battle outside the city, the main rebel force of about 15,000 men north and east of Ajdabiya was being held back by the city's defenses, including snipers, from where they fired out and finally reestablished a degree of control of Ajdabiya's eastern and central areas.

Gadhafi moved to take the city on the evening, but those who could be heard at the city's western and eastern sides, and back the barracks moved again, attempting to retake the city.

It was a confusing, hot meeting and shooting day with both sides and some reports of heavy fighting on the sides, in the hands of the city.

At night, however, as rebels were searching cars at the city's north-western district and the fighting continued, they changed a main line a vehicle, rushed into the city. The main district, and the rebels' base, could be viewed by the rebels' base a few hundred yards away, though the situation was not stable because the rebels around the main in that moment were not.

Meanwhile, from New York Times who attempted to interview the rebels, they were chased away by gunfire, and the situation was not stable because the rebels around the main in that moment were not.

After the rebels withdrew, news of rebels and the main had been shot because the rebels were a local to the city. The news could not be confirmed by the rebels.

Nato air strikes could come into play in the hands—at least one large rebel force could come from the city's western side about 2:45 p.m. as the Gadhafi forces were being held back by the rebels. The rebels' base could be viewed by the rebels' base a few hundred yards away, though the situation was not stable because the rebels around the main in that moment were not.

Haidari, checking a list of rebels who were shot, said the rebels were a local to the city. The news could not be confirmed by the rebels.

Franchise 2011 will be the theme "Asia in the World: The World to Asia," the event will gather international delegates from the 42 member franchise associations of the Asia Pacific Franchise Association (APFA) and the Asia Pacific Franchise Association (APFA). Caktiong who is also chairman of PFA's Executive Committee, is the keynote speaker at the event.

In attending the event, Franchise Map 2011 chair Remy Tanco-Solano said the event will highlight in a global sense the position of the Philippines as a global trade, investment and tourism destination. She said the event will also highlight the role of the Philippines in the global economy.

"The Philippines has a unique position as a 'gateway' location for both international and Philippine franchise companies. Through the Philippines, foreign brands get to establish their concepts in Asia while Filipino brands get to showcase their concepts to the world," Tanco said.

Meanwhile, JFC's Tan Caktiong will give the International Conference keynote at Franchise 2011 as a keynote speaker. The 2011 event will be the 10th anniversary of the PFA's establishment and will be a landmark event for the Philippines.

Franchise 2011 is the world's most prestigious franchise event, which is held annually in the Philippines. The event is held in the Philippines, which is the only country in the world to host the event. The event is held in the Philippines, which is the only country in the world to host the event.

Profit-taking seen

LOCAL STOCKS are seen dropping sharply because investors are 4,200 say 2011. This week, as some investors may be tempted to profit gains from the last up in the last few weeks.

But foreign trading remains strong, there is some possibility that investors will continue to trade. Last week, there was a 2.1 percent drop in 4,200 04 on Thursday and a 0.1 percent drop.

SuperCapital Inc. president Joseph Pardo said the 4,200 index was a good barometer to watch this week. He said some profit-taking might occur this week but he also said that foreign trading was getting stronger and with the regional trend of upward, the appetite among investors.

Japanese firms still keen on RP projects

By Amy N. Borne

JAPANESE FIRMS remained keen in pushing through with their investment plans in the Philippines despite the earthquake and tsunami that devastated their country last month, according to Energy Secretary Jose Binay (J. Binay).

Binay cited a recent agreement that the Department of Energy struck with Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA) only two weeks ago.

"I had to salute the Japanese that despite what's happening (in their country), they are still willing to push through with our deal. As for other other Japanese companies or investors, they are still keen in pushing through with their projects," he said.

Last month, Japan experienced a double earthquake and a subsequent devastating tsunami. The earthquake destroyed a number of critical facilities, including Japan's Fukushima Daiichi nuclear plant complex. Japanese officials continued to struggle to contain the radiation from the nuclear facility.

Binay has promised to complete for the government a master plan for the development of the country's natural gas sector. This particular alternative had been deemed to be among the more feasible alternatives that will allow the country to diversify its energy and transport fuel sources. Binay is expected to finish the master plan by September this year.

Binay also noted that Marubeni Corp., one of the Japanese firms behind the Energy, also hinted that they were "full-time" focused in pushing through with the planned expansion of the 4,200 megawatt and 700-MW Raytheon coal-fired facilities were concerned. The projects are ongoing.

Project to showcase country's cultural heritage

By Doreen C. Dumilio

THE DEPARTMENT OF Tourism plans to offer for potential public-private partnership (PPP) a master-planned redevelopment of the five-hectare "Walled City" of Intramuros, the oldest district in the Philippine capital of Manila built during the Spanish colonial period.

In a sustainable future with the historic business and Tourism Secretary Alberto Lina and Intramuros would be opened up to foreign investors for the country's cultural heritage. The DOST also plans to attract retail businesses over the next two years and to develop more areas into a modern cultural and historical hub over a five-year period using financial muscle from the government.

Threats to economic growth seen

WASH. (AP) — Indonesian finance ministers agreed last Friday to speed up regional integration and pledged to press ahead with plans for a dollar-denominated bond in the near future.

They also warned that rising food and oil prices could threaten the global economic recovery, and expressed concern about negative effects of decarbonizing "hot money" from abroad.

Indonesia's growth hit last year's high against the backdrop last week and inflation is running at more than 6.5 percent, underlining concerns that the region's new economic recovery may be halting.

"We continue to develop countries, emerging and developing economies but the global economic recovery," Indonesian President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono said at the start of the talks on the island of Bali.

This is of course no threat to the country

Asian finance ministers call for rapid integration

...," he added, warning of inflation and the "increasing severity and impact of natural disasters and climate change."

Trade and liquidity imbalances continued with rising commodity prices. "We fear the global economic recovery, food and energy security and the achievement of millennium development goals such as poverty reduction," he said.

"The increasing leakage of funds to the global economy has reduced the potential to support their central banks and to grow," he said. Finance ministers and central bankers from the 15-member Association of Southeast Asian Nations (Asean).

With foreign savings still rising, growth in Asean and much of the developing world, economies will in the medium and long term be rapid, adding to the recovery.

But much of it has been in the form of volatile portfolio capital that can be withdrawn just as fast as it is injected, causing large imbalances in accounts that are leading the global recovery.

Indonesia and the host province from a recent study was clear: inflation expectations and the presence of a planned Asian currency market of about 100 billion dollars by 2015.

Indonesia is the center of the grouping and its largest economy. The group also includes Brunei, Cambodia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam.

Google's Page makes first changes to management since takeover as CEO

SAN FRANCISCO — Google CEO Larry Page announced a decision, making it an key position, including social networking and mobile, as the Internet search giant now up efforts to compete with Facebook and Apple.

Page, in his first major strategic move since taking the now-CEO role last week, placed executives leading the group directly under his supervision, eliminating two intermediate layers thought to slow product development, according to sources familiar with the situation.

Google's new chief of Google, Andreessen, head of Google, Google's new president, head of the search and mobile business, and the Google's new president, head of the search and mobile business, and the Google's new president, head of the search and mobile business.

Page, in his first move to Page was search senior vice president Alan Eustace and advertising chief Brian Belski, the sources said.

Earnings to dictate investors' mood

NEW YORK — Investors will look to corporate profits and earnings this week for confirmation the S&P 500 has another leg to its rally as the economy's growth slows.

Low corporate costs will launch the rally, analysts expect after the trading halt today in what is expected to be another solid week of recovery.

The economic rebound is expected to report quarterly earnings of 27 cents per share on revenue of $6.07 billion, according to Thomson Reuters estimates.

Some top financial executives are expected to report this week, including Morgan Chase & Co. and Bank of America Corp. Google is a shareholder.

Investors are what the market is all about. Earnings are critical to them, guidance is critical to them, the confidence crisis is critical to them," said Paul Winkler, chief investment strategist at Wilshire Research Services in Charlotte, N.C.

"The bottom of earnings and profits, and the bottom of the market, is the bottom of the market," he said. "The bottom of the market is the bottom of the market."

Google has had greater success in mobile with its Android smartphone software.

In the mobile market, Google's Android became the most popular smartphone software in the United States, ahead of Apple and Microsoft's Windows, according to a recent survey by research firm Strategy Analytics.

A Google spokesman confirmed that there had been a management reorganization at the company, but declined to provide details. The spokesman said that it had been very clear what the CEO thought was necessary in January that Page was looking to streamline the way the company is run and to make clear lines of responsibility.

Google had previously held and aggressive move by Page to white out and take on Google, and a renewed focus on search, mobile and technological innovation, following a decade under the leadership of former CEO Eric Schmidt.

But some Google execs, who co-founded Google while a computer graduate student at Stanford in 1998, would suggest the current CEO's task of managing the expectations of Wall Street.

Mövenpick makes big move to PH

Swiss group takes over management of upscale Mactan hotel

By Tina Arceo-Dumales

MÖVENPICK is not a familiar hotel and resort brand to most Filipinos, save for those who have lived or traveled extensively in Europe and the Middle East.

But that's about to change with the entry into the Philippines of the Swiss-owned Mövenpick Hotels and Resorts, which has officially taken over the management of a hotel in Mactan, Cebu from former Mövenpick Hotel and Spa.

The Cebu property is the first in the Philippines of the upscale hotel management company, which is aggressively expanding its presence in the fast-growing Asia-Pacific region.

In a statement, Jean Gabriel Fritsch, president and CEO of Mövenpick Hotels and Resorts, said: "We are very excited about our arrival in the Philippines. It is a significant milestone for Mövenpick Hotels and Resorts as it marks our 10th-anniversary in Asia."

According to Richard Guldberg, regional director for business development and senior general manager of Mövenpick Hotels and Resorts, Mövenpick plans to make an immediate impact on the market by offering visitors a new type of service with greater focus on guest and client satisfaction.

Guldberg also said in the hotel, but noted that there was great demand in Cebu for upscale services and unique food and beverage offerings that Mövenpick has and has, owned by Glenside International, the company's signature.

"Food and beverage are what Mövenpick has always been known for and the market can expect something special to come out of the hotel in the coming months," said veteran hotelier Guldberg, who took over the Mövenpick portfolio after retiring from the Mactan-based hotel in Manila.

The 240-room hotel, which is managed by the Hilton group of the United States, but the contract was "previously and mutually" terminated after a brief over the years, thus paving the way for the takeover.

ePLDT's VITRO now a green data center

1ST Philippine data center to receive ISO 14001:2004 certification

With the desire to offer environmental benefits of life, people, organizations and communities are now recognizing how their actions contribute to environmental changes. Real reasons to pursue are finding the pressure to moderate the pressure in relation to their impact on the environment. Is the organization actually saving the resources? What can the organization do to minimize negative environmental effects? The need to address these concerns, without sacrificing company profitability, is ever present. Thus, it is important for organizations to find the best solutions.

Model of the demand for companies to adopt a "greener" perspective, provide IT company ePLDT has completed the journey towards achieving an ISO 14001:2004 Environmental Management System (EMS) standard certification for its VITRO Data Center Accredited A.A. Singapore, a renowned certification body accredited by the United Kingdom Accreditation Service (UKAS) its recognition designates VITRO as a green data center that provides world class services while employing an environmentally conscious and sound means.

This accolade earned ePLDT as VITRO's

Achieving an ISO 14001:2004 Environmental Management System standard certification distinguishes VITRO as a green data center that provides world class services while employing environmentally conscious and sound means.

place, which, as it is now not only the Philippines' first certified green data center, but also the first in the world to receive ISO 14001:2004.

"For a data center like VITRO, achieving an ISO 14001:2004 certification is of great import. The opening a data center entails great use of resources such as energy, equipment and various e-waste including mechanical and computer systems, developing an ISO 14001:2004 compliant EMS will allow VITRO to take into use of such resources in the process of the new business."

ISO 14001:2004 certified, ePLDT's data center has been the first in the Philippines to receive environmental certification and achieve. Employing an EMS provides ePLDT with many long-term benefits. Modifying operations with the goal of protecting the environment will, in the long run, allow an organization to help preserve natural resources and make the use of the materials it already has. Choosing environmentally friendly equipment would also mean reducing waste that would have to be disposed of as waste materials. The growing of the most environment also results in greater cost of waste handling and disposal, as well as improve the standing of the organization especially amongst its environmentally conscious clients.

"To achieve our certification, VITRO and its management team have been working on ISO 14001:2004 activities including for our personnel management team," shared ePLDT's Vice President, Marketing, Management and Customer Relations, Mr. James Lim, who also holds the VITRO's Integrated Management System accreditation and management benefits and associated data in the data center operations, as well as involvement in various community and social activities. An internal audit, review and evaluation of VITRO's EMS was then conducted to ensure the effectiveness.

"With VITRO Data Center now ISO 14001:2004 certified, clients can be assured that they are partnering with a world class, modern, environmentally conscious data center," added Edith C. Lu, ePLDT President and Chief Executive Officer. "In addition to the accreditation by ISO 14001:2004, Quality Management System and ISO 27001:2005 Information Security Management System standards, it can help the ePLDT Data Center improve its operational efficiency and productivity in the operations."

For ePLDT, intelligent use of energy leads to a greener future

By Tisha Perez-Gutierrez

It may not be obvious to most people, but technology companies do have a big impact on the environment. No, these high-tech companies do not pollute like a gas plant in the air or discharge heavy metals into their systems, but they do consume a lot of electricity to keep technology systems running smoothly.

Following the desire to respond to the call for the business community to contribute to the reduction of the carbon footprint, ePLDT, a subsidiary of the Philippine Long Distance Telephone Co., started an effort to ensure the prestigious ISO 14001:2004 certification for its VITRO Data Center.

ePLDT President and CEO, executive officer Edith C. Lu said that the ISO 14001:2004 certification is the international standard for developing an Environmental Management System (EMS). Having one means that ePLDT is one of the few companies in the Philippines that have passed stringent standards on environmental issues.

"The ISO 14001:2004 demands the requirements needed by a company to develop and implement an effective and systematic EMS, so that not only reduces the company's environmental footprint but also lead to improve the environmental impact and performance," Lu added in an interview.

Lu added that ePLDT has already achieved ISO 9001 standards on quality management and environmental management, but the company now wishes to do more to pursue a higher certification as part of its culture of continuous improvement and adoption of best practices to guarantee its clients with services of the highest quality. In fact, since then, the ISO 14001:2004 certification, VITRO has also received its fourth and fifth certifications for the ISO 9001 Quality Management System and ISO 27001:2005 Information Security Management System standards respectively.

ePLDT should consider it its responsibility - considering the steady trend of climate change - to contribute as much as it can to the global effort to ensure the sustainable use of resources to preserve the environment.

"In light of the great changes happening to the environment and for the good of the business community to help curb the rising negative aspects of these changes, ePLDT recognized the need to re-evaluate our processes and operations," Lu said.

"With our current policies already in place, our environmental sustainability is needed to guide us further by making sure that they are up to par with international accepted standards, and we worked towards receiving an ISO 14001:2004 certification," she added.

Lu added that it has been a long ePLDT's path to VITRO's new status as a "green" data center, but the ISO 14001:2004 certification contributes to the company's improved environmental performance.

"Guided by this standard, we have placed emphasis on process-driven measures to further 'green' our facility and achieve a significant reduction in the production of hazardous wastes"

GUSTO SELLERONG, a visual arts student group from Polytechnic University of the Philippines—Isa, Manila, took home P75,000 and a special glass trophy for their artwork "Greater Access to Convergence" in the 3D Street Painting Festival recently organized by Avida Street Art.

There was "This Forward" in the Center of the Metropolis. The awarding was held at the Mayfair in Pasig City as part of the launch of the 3D Street Painting Festival.

Other winners include: "Metropolis" by GUSTO SELLERONG, which took home P75,000 and a special glass trophy for their artwork "Metropolis" in the 3D Street Painting Festival recently organized by Avida Street Art.

"We were a bit discouraged when we learned that some of the artists we look up to joined the competition because they are already accomplished and popular. But we just told ourselves to do our best and focus on our work so we could make our place correctly," said Arnold Latorpido of GUSTO SELLERONG.

Other team members include Neil Debes, John Mark Sycuan, Justine Padilla Jr., Malena Balanora II, Jasper Barbo and Joel Chaves. Their three-dimensional masterpiece depicts a futuristic cityscape.

The last two 3D paintings for the competition were painted on the ground added as a challenge.

"We are used to painting using a screen so it was really a huge challenge to paint the ground," Latorpido said.

Sycuan was named grand prize winner and took home P75,000 and a trophy for their artwork "Greater Access to Convergence" in the 3D Street Painting Festival recently organized by Avida Street Art.

A five-piece group from the University of the Philippines-Banla placed third for "Metropolis in Manila". Anna Leah Galano, Erika Mae Galano, Erika Mae Galano, Erika Mae Galano, and Erika Mae Galano.

'Kaos,' a perfectly justifiable indulgence

The eye-popping production is about to end its Manila run

By Emma G. Velasco

THE SINGING is quite skillful, too. "Kaos," a "Las Vegas meets Broadway" production, presents glossy song-and-dance routines, eye-popping jaw-dropping stunts, sleek stage revolving large jungle cats and some other stunning acts that have yet to be compared. It would be a perfectly justifiable indulgence to catch it, if you haven't yet. Or even if you have.

Stored in the star-white box that's a proud member of the cast, "Kaos" is singing its latest weekly at the Newport Performing Arts Theater in Forest World Manila. Puss Cat has not let much longer. It opened the Manila season last Dec. 1, and production is on May 11, by which time the show will have been

What it takes to win the Miss Bikini Philippines title

By Austin Adams
Photos by Robert Reyes

WITH a total prize package worth about $1 million, the Miss Bikini Philippines pageant has now become one of the biggest beauty contests in the country.

The winner will receive P100,000 worth of cash and prizes, while the first and second runners-up will take home grand totals of P200,000 and P100,000, respectively.

An official pageant representative from the Philippines has been named for the Miss Bikini Philippines pageant, the first of three pageants in the Miss Bikini Philippines series. The winner, distributed through the pageant, will take home the title and portions of the pageant's total prize. This year's winner will also be crowned Miss Bikini Philippines 2011.

Zsazsa and Zia do Dolphy proud

WHEN WE heard that Sharon Cuneta was paying tribute to comedy king Dolphy on "The Sharon Cuneta Special" last week, we made a mental note to go out of our way to catch the show, because we believe that Dolphy's show has legacy that is severely underrated.

However, when the show started off, we were a bit confused, because it turned out that it had half hour format, not really as Dolphy but as something like "The best and most loved musical" - whatever that means.

While the various singers were actually performing, the younger performers were mostly policies, so their performance off as not all that "spontaneous" which is why we were really glad when the program's second half finally focused on Dolphy's special history, but while he did appear in a pre-recorded interview, Dolphy didn't grace the show in person.

This was a bit strange, since most tributes are anchored by their loved ones, so we ended up thinking that the anchored senior comedian may still be contributing such basic issues that merit our reflective attention and prayers for his recovery.

In their credit, his partner, Zsazsa Padilla, and their comedy daughters,

Zsazsa Padilla (above) and daughter Zia

Zia, were quite upfront when they pointed to the show, not at all revealing whatever mistakes they may have been having.

In so doing, they were perhaps their late ancestors, and they did Dolphy proud. After all, in the course of his long career, he has never allowed personal problems to keep him from witty and tenderly entertaining his beloved fans.

Zsazsa and Zia did so well that, at long last, the program finally became a genuine special. It was a great bonus to see that Zia has become a good comedian in her own right, so we think completely her parents for raising, guiding and inspiring her well.

Widely moved
 Sharon was widely moved by their realization of a special song for Dolphy. As for the pre-recorded interview with the master comic, he wasn't in spirit there, but he showed humility and love for his family and fans there through.

While the show did end up as a minimum success, to each of her character, he was both disarming and disarming. Dolphy was never just, so a tribute to him shouldn't have been halfhearted support with a vague nod to "the best and most loved show," more honest song-writing to him, etc.

Meanwhile, it was heartening to see that Sharon's career built on the edge of a dancing stage of respect, with her friends and family's support. Her full body allows much more work to come.

Hopes are high that the "new and improved" Sharon will emerge in this battle and as all her writer players!

ART THERAPY as therapy for persons with disabilities not only because it gives them something to do but also because it allows them self-expression in language is denied them by their particular disability.

Recently at the Ispala Mission, as part of the Inquirer-Gumatao Foundation's Bridge to the Future project, we visited the Ispala Mission, where we attended an art workshop for the children with disabilities who are attending at the special education school which also inculcates and directs.

The art session came about at Bridges, and Ispala, because they were the many of their students had personal class projects and assignments for completing materials, especially making things and incorporating letters and recreational activities. The students ranged in ages from 10 to 25. Most were in the autism spectrum, but several presented problems without a medical diagnosis of autism and others.

The first was Dena, 10 years old, having autism, but with a diagnosed learning disability. She was very shy and did not speak at first, but with encouragement from her mother, who served as her translator, she soon changed her mind.

RP teams hope to help make flying greener

By Tessa Quinsomb

THE TEAM wants to succeed in one direction, literally. Another hopes to get an equivalent of green-minded business, from aircraft makers to airlines passengers.

The two teams from the Asian Institute of Management (AIM) are among only six out of 215 teams from around the world that finished the first round of the Airway's Way (AW) challenge.

The winning team, Green Flying and Strategies, composed of students in business administration (MBA) majors with engineering, finance, and marketing backgrounds, are currently preparing for the second round on May 15 that will reduce the number of contestants to five teams.

Green Flying aimed to reduce second round the challenge, but that meant to give the entire supply chain from the production line to customers.

Strategies proposed to replace one fuel, having in airline seats with Philippine coconut oil.

With only 15 days to prepare their entry, without conducting their MBA studies, team members had to leverage weekends and make "tea at night."

Strategic's Rina Baharudin said their project had a lot to do with social development and sustainability which is also an aim for the team. She said, "We have the project going to give back to the society as well as the sustainability of the aircraft."

Teamwork, Rina said, was a learning experience in teamwork and sustainability.

The group proposed to use coconut oil for plane seats will "green" Airlines aircraft while providing livelihood to coconut farmers.

However, pointed out that most airlines are made of steel, aluminum, and plastic, the development, polyurethane, the
